

University of Maryland School of Law

The article talks about the University of Maryland School of Law that which is among the top law schools in the US. You also get to know about the admission process, courses offered, and the university's role in job placements. The university provides outstanding learning opportunities to students who want to excel in a legal career.

The University of Maryland School of Law came into being in the year 1816; however regular classes started in the year 1824. One of the oldest law schools of the country, Maryland law school offers comprehensive and innovative courses and a lively learning environment. Maryland law school is among five other professional schools on the University of Maryland, Baltimore campus. This law school is a significant part of the legal community in this area.

Admissions

The admission decisions are made by the Admissions Committee at the University of Maryland School of Law on a rolling basis. During this process, the members of the Admissions Committee evaluate the caliber of applicants by scrutinizing their academic record, experiences, and skills. The Committee prefers applicants who are willing to help their peers in professional development thereby contributing greatly to the law school. Students who wish to take admission in this law school can visit the campus during the fall semester and also attend one class. During their law school tour they can also discuss about legal education with other students or staff.

Academics

The curriculum at the University of Maryland School of Law is exceptionally rich in both theoretical and practical courses. Law students of this university have clarity of thought and exceptional analytical skills too that help in a successful legal career. They have a 12:1 student/teacher ratio that is very beneficial for students. This allows the faculty to give due attention to every student and also work on a one-on-one basis, if need be. The university has the best law professors who ensure that the university graduates are bright and dynamic.

The University of Maryland School of Law provides outstanding learning opportunities to its students. The curriculum is traditional as well as current allowing students to learn required skills and attain necessary knowledge in any area of law they choose to practice.

Courses Provided

- A Maryland law degree combines several key law components; the curriculum is comprehensive and includes Civil Procedure, Constitutional Law, Contracts, Torts, Property, and Criminal Law. Students can specialize in any of these areas as the course advances. The University of Maryland's J.D. (Juris Doctor) Degree Program offers a full-time day program, a part-time day program, and a part-time evening program.
- The Maryland Master of Laws (LL.M.) degree provides advanced legal education to law students who need to specialize in a particular area. This is a rigorous program for those who are keen to know more about pressing legal issues.
- The University advocacy offerings help students develop necessary skills like effective writing, persuasive presentation, intellectual flexibility, and the ability to anticipate the other side's argument.

Career Development Guidance

The University of Maryland School of Law also has a Career Development Office (CDO) that offers professional assistance to students and alumni in finding suitable employment in the legal profession. Since the Career Development Office has good understanding and association with the best law firms of the country, they can help students get outstanding jobs at the start of their legal career.

EmploymentCrossing is the largest collection of active jobs in the world.

We continuously monitor the hiring needs of more than 250,000 employers, including virtually every corporation and organization in the United States. We do not charge employers to post their jobs and we aggressively contact and investigate thousands of employers each day to learn of new positions. No one works harder than EmploymentCrossing.

Let EmploymentCrossing go to work for you.